BTC pulls back after positive period. Stays above $6000.

Bitcoin has tumbled back down to the $6000 support after a steady price rise in the past two weeks. False reports of Goldman Sachs aborting its crypto trading desk are believed to have contributed to the sharp decline.

Vitalik claim we won't see another 1000x growth explosion.

Ethereum founder, Vitalik Buterin, believes a dead-end in ETH and blockchain is near, adding that we'll "go from just people being interested to real applications of real economic activity". Bloomberg

Conflicting signals from major news outlets has negative affect on market.

Investopedia has contradicted news released by Business Insider this week regarding the Goldman Sachs crypto desk status. Manipulation and fake news and could be at play as the price plunged right after the article release.
